CAUSES OF DISEASES.

An Address to the Members of the Y. M. C. A. by Dr. G. L. Milne.

On the Causes and Prevention of Diseases—Tuberculosis, Typhoid Fever, &c.

Address by Dr. Milne before the Y. M. C. A. last night.

There are many subjects in medicine, no doubt, that would be of interest to you in a general way, but there is no subject of greater importance than the subject we are about to consider for a short time and in a brief way this evening, and one in which you all can take part to a greater or less degree, namely,

THE CAUSE AND PREVENTION OF DISEASE.

It is recognized by all that to educate the masses in health subjects is the only way in which progress can be made in public hygiene. The individual may strive for cleanliness and other sanitary reforms, but still he is at the mercy of his neighbor, whose proceedings may upset all foresight and personal attention to any sanitary laws he may have adopted. It is true most people wish for greater power to control sanitary regulations over the actions of others. This is no doubt necessary, but the best results to be obtained from sanitary laws is to educate the people to these necessities. In considering the subject of the prevention of disease, in the first place let us enquire what are the causes of disease? This suggests to us many questions, which in a short address cannot be fully considered. My intention to-night is to deal briefly with a few of the prominent causes of disease, and more particularly refer to diseases communicable from animals to man. The causes of disease in a general way may be classed as follows: Impure water, impure air, climate, food, intemperance, clothing, contagion, &c. Speaking first, then, of impure air, water and food, as the origin, of disease, through these media is received into the human body

PARTICLES OF ORGANIC MATTER,

living or dead, which tend to produce disease. You have no doubt noticed the effect of an overcrowded room, the impurities of which consist mainly of carbonic acid, ammonia, sulphurated hydrogen and various organic compounds, the latter of which exists as minute particles, which are extremely prone to decomposition. And when these impurities exist you will at once see the importance of proper ventilation for the purpose of procuring adequate supply of fresh air. The chief impurity in a close room, we have to contend with, is carbon acid. It exist in about two to five parts in 10,000 in pure air, when it exceeds this the atmosphere is considered close. Keeping this standard in mind, anyone can be able to give an opinion, even by the senses as to condition of the air in a room. There are many other impurities arising from combustion, gases, marshes, dust, &c., which contaminate atmosphere to a greater or less degree. Then in consideration of these facts, the evil effects of these impurities, and the diseases likely to arise from them are many. The question of impure water as a cause of disease, we must not pass by; of all the preventable causes of disease, this is one that should receive our utmost attention. Leaving for the present, the chemical impurities of water, let us look at the diseases of which are produced from organic causes, or in other words, the source by which disease enters the body. There is no greater source by which disease is carried than through

IMPURE WATER.

We hear frequently of outbursts of disease from bad water. Cholera, typhoid fever, diphtheria and other diseases are generally traced to this cause. Few wells, and very few indeed, contain water fit for household purposes, and should be condemned, because sewage percolates through the area of its drainage and becomes contaminated with organic matter. Many a case of typhoid fever and diphtheria can be traced to this cause alone. Precaution should also be exercised in having our city water supply as pure as possible. Numerous epidemics have been traced of typhoid fever arising from impure water, or contaminated water carried from miles distant. The relation between the distribution of water, which contains sewage, and the prevalence of typhoid fever, can easily be observed. Taking the mortuary returns of certain cities and the condition of their water supply, complete and trustworthy data can be obtained on this point for many years back. In the city of Brooklyn, where the water supply is free from sewage, the death rate from typhoid fever is only 15 in 100,000 of population, while in Boston, where the same purity of water is not maintained, the death rate is 40 per 100,000 population. In Philadelphia, also, and other cities in the United States, where less attention is given to the purity of the water supply, the is greatly increased. A striking instance of this comes from the continent of Europe. In the city of Vienna, from the year 1857 to 1874, well water of an impure character was used to a large extent, in addition to a supply from the river Danube. During this period the deaths from typhoid fever ranged from 100 to 340 annually in every 100,000 population. But since the time mentioned, a supply of pure water has been the means of reducing the death rate to as low as 11 per 100,000. In the face of such testimony we cannot but admit that the increased death rate of typhoid fever is governed largely by the supply of water used by the citizens. As there are so many causes of disease we will only again mention them and pass on to consider one or two more fully. They are climate, condition of habitations, food, clothing, intemperance, want of exercise, occupation, heredity and contagion. We shall confine our remarks to the last two. First, then as to heredity: You have all doubtless noticed that children inherit from their parents a physical likeness in color, temperament and other peculiarities, and some diseases are supposed to be capable of transmission from parent to offspring, and this belief is unquestionably true in some instances. This influence is stronger from the immediate ancestry than from the remote, although this is not always the case. We find that sometimes hereditary disease is not visible in one generation, and appears in the next. Knowing then, as we do, the hereditary tendency of diseases, and their likelihood of descending from one generation to another, these diseases might be guarded against, when known to exist, because it cannot be denied that such diseases are also promoted by external causes.

DEATH RATE FROM TYPHOID FEVER

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES

look upon hereditary tendencies as a matter of great importance. Results of experience have taught them a wholesome lesson in this particular, and looking upon it from a monetary point of view, it is one they are not likely to pass unnoticed. The medical examiner of a well conducted life insurance company has his attention drawn to this question, and some hard and fast rules are laid down for his guidance. Take for example in the case of consumption. If it has occurred in the applicant's family he is only insurable under the following circumstances, namely: If both parents have died of this disease an application would not be entertained until the applicant had reached his fortieth year; and in the case of one parent having succumbed to this disease, the applicant would require to have reached his thirtieth year, and so on as to death of sister or brother or other relations. I refer to this disease in this sense as further on when referring to tuberculosis arising from other causes, some authorities have even gone as far as to deny any hereditary tendency of consumption, and attribute it to other causes. We shall refer to this more particularly when speaking of the communicability of disease from animals to man. There are other diseases to which we might refer as hereditary, among the chief of which is gout, cancer and insanity, the last of which should require more than a passing notice. When we take into consideration the large amount of money spent yearly by our governments for

THE CARE OF THE INSANE,

this at once enlists our attention. But there is another aspect of the subject which demands our sympathy—the well-being of these unfortunates, owing to the increased number of cases sent to our asylums of late years it behooves us to enquire into the causes. The causes may be put down as moral, mental, or physical. The chief predisposing cause is the subject to which I have already referred, namely, heredity. About 75 per cent. of all cases can be put down to this. Such being the case, you will at once see the necessity of avoiding such calamities by selecting a partner for life free from all such tendencies. The advice of a physician, or even of friends, on the delicate question of marriage is not generally sought, nor, is it often followed, only when it happens to agree with the wishes of the parties interested. I only refer to this subject to indicate the line of action necessary by our legislators. I believe the time is not far distant when the law makers will put upon the statutes laws governing the marriage of those of a diseased mind. In a recent address, a leading physician in Philadelphia made the statement that he believed before many years would pass by, laws would be instituted prohibiting those who are subjects of epilepsy from marrying. This may be considered a radical change from the present, but I believe that that day will come, and none too soon in the interest of humanity. It is becoming

CLEARER AND MORE EVIDENT

as investigation advances that the ordinary diseases which prevail among cattle, sheep, pigs, horses, poultry and other domestic animals are communicable to man, and vice versa from man to animals. It has long been known that the diseases, glanders, hydrophobia, trichinitis, are common to both, and it is now fully believed that the tubercular disease in animals is identical with tubercular consumption in human beings, and that the disease can be conveyed from one to another. Of all the domesticated animals none is so intimately related to the human race as the cow. We use her milk, eat her flesh, and recent investigation goes to show that the cow is subject to tubercular disease to a great extent. It is then greatly to our interest to consider this question carefully. Several authorities in England estimate that of all bovines in that country five per cent. are affected with tuberculosis, while it is estimated that of the thoroughbred Jerseys of the Northern States 20 per cent. are affected with this disease. This subject having been considered by some American authorities, they have gone so far as to say that tuberculosis in mankind is derived from the bovine race, and maintain that they have strong evidence to prove this statement. However, it is well known that where the bovine species does not exist consumption is unknown. Take for example, in parts of Russia where they have no cows, but have domesticated the horse and use its milk, meat and skin, consumption has

NEVER BEEN KNOWN TO EXIST

among the inhabitants. The Esquimau has no cows and pulmonary consumption is unknown. From these deductions some writers have drawn conclusions that where the dairy cow is unknown pulmonary consumption does not prevail. While not accepting the conclusion as being altogether in compliance with investigations so far made, still the fact is now well known and established that the transmission of tuberculosis from animals to man, through the use of milk from cows, cannot be contradicted. At the last meeting of the British Medical Association, held in Glasgow in August of last year, Professor Walley said: "Since 1879 he had, with other members of the profession, frequently drawn attention to the dangerous nature of this disease, and urged that it should be dealt with as a contagious malady. There was, in his opinion, no disease that claimed more earnest attention that this, as it was greatly on the increase, both in cattle and in poultry." At the Paris Congress on tuberculosis, held last July, similar statements were made by men who had made this subject their study. There are many instances given showing how the disease is transmitted. One case of a child, recorded in the Medical Press, where the child had died, aged four months, whose family history was clear of any tubercular tendency, but

DIED OF TUBERCULOSIS.

The cow from which the milk was procured and specially kept for the purpose of feeding the child, was afterward killed and found to be diseased with tubercle. The milk was also examined and found to contain evidence of the disease. Experiments of this kind have been made time and again, and all evidence points to this theory as being a correct one, and founded on actual facts. We might quote several authorities with their experiments, but time will not permit. I might also say that experiments have been made in reference to the meat of tuberculous animals. Such meat has been fed to Guinea pigs and rabbits. Twenty per cent of the animals so fed became diseased with tubercle. With these facts, the result of careful study, there can be no doubt of this, that tubercle is conveyed from animal to man, and that to a considerable degree; but it is hardly to be believed that all tuberculous diseases arise from this source. If so, the theory of heredity would fall to the ground. True it is that families are prone to this disease, probably more from their configuration and structure of the body, than that the disease is inherited. This disease is considered by the majority of the medical profession to be preventable and the subject of prevention becomes a very important one in this particular, when it is known that ten thousand deaths are caused by consumption in our Dominion yearly. Much of this could be avoided if proper attention were paid to matters of hygiene, place of residence, food, etc. I have referred to this question now particularly because the cause of consumption is

GREATLY MISUNDERSTOOD,

and it is with the object that you should have in future a better understanding of it that I have dealt with it at some length. Many a man or woman believe they are doomed to disease because some near relative had died of consumption. Many of these cases, we believe, fall a victim to consumption because they do little or nothing to avoid it, and fall into a condition which, in time, the disease counts them as its own. When we take into consideration the large number of deaths yearly from this dis-

TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

John Bright as a Fisherman—Visit of the Kaiser to Queen Victoria.

Truth About the King of the Netherlands—The Late Duke of Buckingham.

By Postal Telegraph.]

New York, April 2.—Edmund Yates' London cable to the Tribune says: During the past week I have read a great deal of Mr. Bright as a statesman, patriot and orator, but hardly a line of him as a votary of salmon fishing. It was not until after his first attack of nervous prostration that he addicted himself to this pursuit, and he had not the fullness of skill which belongs to one who has been brought up on the banks of a salmon river, but the spell of it took complete possession of him and his zeal, devotion and aptitude went far to supply lack of early intuition. Almost from the first he threw a good line, and after his first season he needed no hints from an attendant fisherman to tell him what was likely and what barren water. He was conversant with the Tweed, Tay and Spey. His favorite river was the Spey, and he had quite mastered that peculiar cast which anglers know as the "Spey Throw."

It has now been definitely settled that the visit of the German Emperor is to take place at the end of June, when the Queen is at Cowes. A flotilla of eight German ironclads will accompany him, and he will be welcomed by his grandmother officially as Emperor, although it is improbable that he will come to London. Naval manoeuvres on a large scale are likely to take place during his stay. Count Herbert Bismarck will come with him.

The truth about the King of Netherlands has come out. Why such a mystery has been made of it is inconceivable. He has been quite out of his mind for months with occasional glimpses of sanity. The doctors informed the Government long ago that there was no chance of this rallying, and that ultimately he would become quite mad, under which circumstances his health might improve and his life be prolonged, which now is said to be unlikely. The Queen long shrank from assuming the regency, which she knew would announce to the world her husband's condition; but the position has been at last forced upon her. Lately the King, who at first could not bear her out of his sight, conceived the most violent dislike to her, which made it impossible for her to nurse him as hitherto.

The late Duke of Buckingham and Chandos will be remembered as one of the best men of business who ever sat in the House of Lords. His grasp of detail was extraordinary, and on matters of procedure and other technical questions he could speak with the same authority and precision as in other days on the most abstruse points connected with the management of the London and Northwestern Railway. Although he was naturally a man of homely tastes and unaristocratic appearance, he was proud of his lineage and position. The splendor of his silver howdah and liveried retinue is not yet forgotten either at Madras or at Delhi where his magnificence outshone the Governor-General's, and contrasted curiously with the simplicity of the lean agriculturalist, who administered his estate in a patriarchal manner, peculiarly his own. In the country he was the confident of his tenants and dependents, giving them an abundance of paternal good advice, with that peculiar brusqueness which concealed his real kindness of heart. The Duke was one of those men who never had a day's illness until two and a half years ago, when he showed signs of failing.

The new Earl of Carlisle is a quiet man of retiring habits devoted to art and himself no mean artist. He married the Hon. Rosalind Stanley's daughter of Alderly, by whom he has a large family of sons.

BRIGHT'S SUCCESSOR.

London, April 1.—An exciting contest is expected over the parliamentary election in central Birmingham district, lately represented by John Bright. The Liberals have selected a candidate to run against Bright's son and the Tories, the latest report says, will endeavor to run Lord Randolph Churchill for the seat.

It is stated in political circles that Lord Randolph Churchill prompted the Liberals to make him their candidate for the central district of Birmingham against Mr. Bright, in order to secretly sow dissention between the Liberal-Unionists and Tories.

LETTER FROM STANLEY.

London, April 1.—Sir Francis DeWinton was interviewed to-day regarding the letter from Stanley. Sir Francis was greatly rejoiced over the contents of the letter, which, he says, will occupy five newspaper columns. He says that the letter will not be published until tomorrow. The Government has no knowledge of the contents of the letter.

FUNERAL OF JOHN BRIGHT.

London, April 1.—The funeral of John Bright took place on Saturday. Crowds of people lined the route of the procession from the residence to the cemetery. A number of deputations headed the procession. Eight of Bright's workmen carried the coffin. When the coffin was deposited in the grave, the mourners gathered around in silent meditation according to the custom of the Quakers, to which sect Bright belonged. The dean of Loundres College delivered an oration.

£21,000,000 FOR THE NAVY.

London, April 1.—In the Commons in committee to-night was authorized a naval expenditure proposed by Lord George Hamilton, first lord of the admiralty, by a vote of 251 to 75. The estimates involve an expenditure of £21,000,000.

WRECKED WAR SHIPS.

Washington, April 1.—Commodore Walker, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, said this evening that the department would for the present make no effort to replace the wrecked warships with other vessels of the Navy at Samoa. The German Government, he said, was about as badly off as the United States, in respect of protection at Apia, and until Admiral Kimberly's report should be received nothing would be done. There were four vessels in the Pacific now which could be ordered to Apia if necessary.

A WINTER RESORT.

A Climate Rivalling Naples and Marseilles in British Columbia.

From the Empire].

If France has its winter resorts in the south on the borders of the Mediterranean, Canada has its almost equally balmy localities, ultimately to become winter resorts, on the shores of the Pacific. Strange to say, we in Ontario have to go west to reach them, or rather north-west, for they are between three or four hundred miles farther north than Toronto. It is doubtful if, even yet, Eastern Canadians realize the mildness of our western coasts. The December report, just issued, of the Canadian Meteorological Service shows that month at Quamichan, B. C., to have been a little above 45° Fahr. in mean temperature. At Victoria and various other places in British Columbia the mean was considerably above 40 deg., and even up to the beginning of February not a flake of snow had fallen. How comparatively mild these mean temperatures are may be better realized from the statement that Marseilles has a January mean of 44 deg. and Naples of little more than 46 deg. Quamichan in December was warmer than Toronto last October, and less than two degrees colder than our ordinary October. Nor is this winter mildness exceptional. An instance is known in very recent years of no descent to the freezing point until Christmas, and none after the first week in January was over, while at no time did the mercury fall lower than three degrees below freezing. We question if Nice and Mentone ever experience a winter in which all the morning frosts are embraced within the short period of a fortnight. Roses have been known to bloom in January in the gardens at Esquimalt, and in any year wild flowers may be plucked in the woods in February.

Nor need the wetness, so often associated in the minds of most Canadians with the winter climate of the British Columbian coast, be encountered by those in search of a mild winter resort in our Pacific province. It is true that in many localities the rainfall is excessive, but while all parts of Vancouver Island and the mainland, exposed to the full sweep of the ocean winds, have rainy winters, the east side of Vancouver, protected from these winds by the intervention of a range of mountains traversing the island from north to south, has but little rain, and escapes also the strong winds elsewhere experienced. At Nanaimo, for instance, the rainfall is but little more than 22 inches in the whole year, or one-third less than at Toronto.

To the shore of the Gulf of Georgia, therefore, Canadians can look with hope for the mild climate which is so essential to the comfort of many invalids. In many respects the winter season there is preferable to that of the Southern States. The sea is ever present with its invigorating influence. The drift of the atmosphere is almost steadily from the mild waters of the adjacent ocean, while protection is afforded from the cold continental winds by the serried ranks of mountains lying to the eastward. The effect of this protection is that the coast climate knows none of those sudden changes and extremely low descents of the mercury that are experienced in the Southern States, even so far south as the Gulf of Mexico, and which are very trying to persons of low vitality, however beneficial they may be to vigorous people.

As the peculiar differences of climate that exist on the British Columbian coast become better known, there is no doubt that fully equipped winter resorts will be established along the winding waters of the Gulf of Georgia, where in addition to balminess of climate the visitors will enjoy surroundings in mountains and sea unsurpassed in grandeur by those of any health resorts in the world.

Death's Doings—Yesterday's Gale—Early Closing.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Grant were yesterday called upon to mourn the death of their little daughter Alice, aged six years and three months, which took place on Sunday night.

Yesterday morning's train from Victoria was forced to stop several times in order to remove fallen trees from the track. A severe gale prevailed down the line and the telegraph wires were blown down in several places, but no serious damage was done.

We are very pleased to see that several of our leading merchants have signified their intentions of closing at 7 p. m. on week days and 10 p. m. on Saturday. That will give hard-worked employees a chance to obtain a little fresh air and to seek some recreation.

A Minneapolis man went into a Nanaimo chop house on Saturday night and ate two oyster stews and polished off thirteen eggs cooked in various styles. When going out he remarked, "A fellow can't get a square meal in this town, anyhow."

Alex. Tranfield and R. Craig left on Sunday to visit Aleck's new gold find, somewhere between Nanaimo and Comox. Evidently this Island has not been properly prospected, if it be true, as Tranfield says, that his claim is only six miles from the coast. The only way to account for it is that in the time of the gold fever every one rushed to Cariboo and ignored all other places. We wish them luck and shall anxiously await developments.

The steamer Rustler has arrived from her trip to the northern logging camps. She reports that things are starting in on a summer footing at King & Casey's, Cortes Island, and Ireland's, Campbell's river.

TO THE TIMES ONLY.

The Death and Funeral of Hon. J. H. Pope, Minister of Railways.

Deceased Supposed to Have Left a Bequest to Sir J. A. McDonald.

Ottawa, April 1.—Hon. J. H. Pope, Minister of Railways and Canals, died at 5 o'clock this afternoon. He was born in Eastern Townships, Quebec, in 1824, and spent the early part of his life on a farm. When about thirty years of age he began to take an interest in politics, and was a candidate for Compton in 1854, and in 1857 was elected. He was appointed Minister of Agriculture in 1871, and again in 1878, in which position he remained until 1885, when he was appointed Minister of Railways and Canals. He was president of the International Railway of Maine, and a director of the Eastern Townships Bank. He was also one of the trustees of the St. Francis College, Richmond, P. Q. He sat in Parliament continuously for over 30 years for Compton. He was not an eloquent man, but he possessed a large share of executive ability. When the news reached the Commons, the premier moved an adjournment of the House, saying he would take a future opportunity to express the regret they all felt at the demise of the hon. gentleman. Mr. Laurier seconded the motion and the House adjourned.

Special to The Times.]

Ottawa, April 2.—To-day is private member's day in the House, the only day in the week they have got. Little of public interest so far transacted. This evening the Canadian Pacific Railway bill will come up and the debate will take place. The opposition comes from Nova Scotia members, owing to the company not completing the Short Line there. It will, however, pass.

The remains of Hon. J. H. Pope were conveyed at 2 o'clock to-day from here to his home in Cookshire, Que., by a special train on the Canadian Pacific. The was a large attendance at the funeral, the chief mourners being the deceased's son, who is a farmer at Cookshire, and his son-in-law, Mr. Ives, M. P. The pall bearers were Sir John Macdonald, Sir A. P. Caron, Hon. Jno. Carling, Sir Hector Langevin, Senator Cochrane, Alonzo Wright, M. P., James Trow, M.P., and C. Colby, M. P., all for many years associated in Parliament and political life with the late Minister of Railways. Sir John was very much affected. It is said that the deceased, who had amassed a large fortune, left Sir John a handsome sum, but so far the report cannot be verified. Several floral wreaths were presented, including one from A. W. Ross, M. P., Vancouver. The Canadian Pacific and Grand Trunk magnates were in attendance.

A successor to Mr. Pope is one of the questions discussed here. The chances are that there will be a shuffle of portfolios, as the new appointee will not get the railway department. It is most likely that the new minister will be Colby, Deputy speaker, and Peter White (Renfrew) will be appointed in his stead. Chapleau, or Haggart, will be Minister of Railways. Another report is that the portfolio of railways will be abolished and the department attached as formerly to Public Works. This is very doubtful. Sir John's fault has not been that of abolishing offices wherein to shelve his needy supporters or political friends.

SPORTING NOTES.

Shade Stops the Walking Match—Smith and Mitchell.

The go-as-you-please race, advertised to take place at the skating rink last evening, did not come off. One of the young men entered for the race would not compete unless the prize was placed in the hands of responsible parties. The money making scheme of the parties having the affair in charge, was summarily stopped by E. D. Shade, who is a member of the Victoria Athletic club. His action will be endorsed by every honest sporting man in the city.

CHAMPIONSHIP OF ENGLAND.

New York, March 30.—Richard K. Fox to-day received from G. W. Atkinson a cable to the effect that the backers of Jem Smith and Charley Mitchell met at the office of the Sporting Life to-day and arranged final preliminaries for their £400-glove fight and championship of England. The battle is to be decided next Monday night.

WRESTLING MATCH IN SEATTLE.

The wrestling match last Saturday between Peter Schumacher, of Seattle, champion middle-weight of the Pacific Coast, and Pietro Arena, champion of Italy, for $500 a side and gate receipts, was won by Schumacher after a hot contest. Both of the men were in excellent trim. Arena weighed fully 175 pounds, while Schumacher was fifteen pounds lighter; but the lighter man's superior agility more than made up for his deficiency in weight. Dan H. Cameron, of Victoria, acted as referee. Betting was $100 to $80 in favor of Arena. After the first bout, which Arena won in nine minutes and twenty seconds, it was $100 to $20 in Arena's favor. After the second bout, which Schumacher won in four minutes and forty seconds, it was $120 to $100 in Schumacher's favor. The third bout and match was won by Schumacher in three minutes exactly. Cameron offered to throw Arena four times within an hour.

FOOTBALL.

As it is understood that Victoria has declined to meet the mainland team on Easter Monday the members of the local club are making an effort to have this important match played in Nanaimo on that day. If it can be arranged, a really first class match will be witnessed by our citizens, and no doubt the Rovers will maintain their unbeaten record.—Nanaimo Free Press.

There was laid on the table of the House to-day a return showing that the total personal property assessment of the province amounted to $11,890,000, and that the personal property tax received from the different municipalities between the 30th June, 1887, and 31st December, 1888, was as follows:

Victoria City	$17,507 [illegible]
Nanaimo City	1,129 09
New Westminster City	1,[illegible] 51
Vancouver City	722 90
North Cowichan Municipality	171 82

Richmond "	152 70
Langley "	129 45
Surrey "	61 99

The names of all persons assessed on income are also included in the return. Those paying the income tax resident in Victoria are twice as numerous as in all other parts of the province.

Inflammation of the Eyes Cured.

Mr. Jacob D. Miller, Newbury, writes: "I was troubled with Inflammation of the Eyes, so that during nearly the whole of the summer of 1882 I could not work; I took several bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery, and it gives me great pleasure to inform you that it cured me of my affliction. It is an excellent medicine for Costiveness."

WELL BORING COMMITTEE.

The well-boring committee as we expected it would, found against the Government, and with terse brevity expressed its disapprobation of antediluvian well-boring machinery. Nor did the committee stop here. These imitators of Spartan brevity rendered it as their opinion that, notwithstanding the absence of water in the vicinity of Mr. Martin's, the Government would do well to sink a hole in some other locality. The one particular bane of the Government, with all of its high license predilections and liberality in the matter of water lots of the town of Granville (a feature which Mr. Orr wanted to investigate, but which Mr. Robson was too modest to grant) is its inability to appreciate the moistening qualities of well water. The Government does not seem to have any use for that kind of moisture. The Government worships exclusively at the shrine of Pluvius and Neptune. It has no use for water derived immediately from subterranean sources. It is lucky that the mossy fringes on the backs of the Government does not have to depend on artesian wells for moisture else it would lose its emerald lustre and turn to russet brown. We did think at first that the committee's report was altogether too brief, but when we consider Mr. Davie's inability to take a hint is the rule not the exception in Government circles; that the Government susceptibilities are well padded with the fungus growth aforesaid, long speeches are no better than short ones. The committee showed great good sense in reporting briefly. They might in fact have simply confined themselves to the phrase "we cannot do the subject justice." It would have had the same effect on Government obtuseness as a volume of rhetoric and the public would have appreciated the satire of the thing just the same.

ABOUT SUBSIDIES.

There is no objection to the subsidizing of the Canadian Western railway in the shape of land grants, provided the land so subsidized is made as accessible to settlement as under government auspices. The land so subsidized should be given graded values, according to location and quality, and the terms of purchase made easy. It may be urged that the interests of the company itself require that it offer inducements to settlement. Undoubtedly this would be a strong operating cause, but it is notorious that railway lands do not, all things equal, settle up as quickly as government lands. But aside from these features of the case, which offer endless ground for argument as meddling with private interests, the question arises, if a railway company can afford to expend $50,000,000 on an enterprise of the kind in question, and take the chances of getting a portion of its money back out of land sales, why cannot the Government mortgage the land and build the railway itself. If a railway company can raise money on the prospective value of land grants why should not the Government be able to do so. That British Columbia wants more railways is self-evident, but if in giving away land to acquire them the parties to whom the land is donated may hold it at pleasure, reserving such portions of it as they think best, reserving in fact more than they themselves can develop, the principal of such subsidizing is a bad one. In the matter of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land grant, the owners have more mineral land than they can develop. This company, which has the interests of the commonwealth at heart, will sell you enough surface land for ordinary plowing, but if you wanted to subsoil you would have to guarantee against the upheaval of mineral. This dog in the manger policy means slow development, and it is perfectly clear that the Government should not give away any more land under such conditions. Landlordism in Ireland is no worse than on Vancouver Island, and the Government profiting by its dicker with Stanford, Crocker, et al., should, in donating the public domain to anybody, attach such conditions as shall preclude the hoggish policy of railway syndicates. We repeat that we want and are in favor of this projected line of railway, but not under conditions detrimental to progress and calculated to build up enormous private fortunes.

HARRISON'S PROCLAMATION.

In yesterday's Times we adverted to the liberal interpretation the Canadian papers had put on Harrison's Behring Sea Proclamation by saying that while the document had the merit of reading well it did not undertake to specify how much of Behring's Sea the United States claimed. To corroborate our position we quote the San Francisco Bulletin, a paper which thinks well before it speaks:

Sir John Macdonald's opinion regarding the scope of President Harrison's Behring Sea proclamation is tenable, taking the document by itself, but considering it in connection with American title ceded by Russia, it clearly means prohibition of sealing in all waters of Behring Sea eastward of the treaty line.

The proclamation, says the Bulletin, was issued in obedience to an act of the last Congress in the shape of an amendment to section 1956.

"Chapter III, Title 23, which makes certain regulations in relation to the Alaskan fisheries; and declares that the prohibitions there enacted "shall exclude and apply to all the dominion of the United States in the waters of Behring Sea."

The object of the new law is to extend the jurisdiction of the United States over all the waters of Behring Sea, ceded to the United States by Russia in the Treaty of June 20, 1867.

In the international aspect of the case there will be substantial agreement among our people. These waters and their product belong to us. The unsatisfactory part of the assertion of our rights is that the prohibition runs not only against foreigners, but against our own citizens. But there was left no choice to the President. The Act is directed against all persons, Americans as well as foreigners.

Such is the Bulletin's opinion of the true scope of President Harrison's proclamation, and as it seems to be based on a knowledge of the inner workings of the subject, we are bound to regard the Canadian interpretation of the proclamation as the result of the wish being father to the thought.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

If Mr Davie ever has the brass to appear before the people and ask for re-election to the legislature, after his conduct on the public accounts committee, it will surely be when brass is at a premium.

As to the origin of the moral sense whether primarily divine, or the result of civilizing influences, is a mooted question. Herbert Spencer is not satisfied with the ten commandments, not that he objects to them as a moral code, but he attributes to them a merely sensual instead of inspired spiritual origin. For instance, the idea that murder was a crime was not originally connected in any manner with the question of right and wrong, but came from the fact that no matter for what use he might be intended, a live man was better than a dead man. Wives and families thought so. Chiefs of tribes entertained that opinion. Live men were always in demand to fight battles, to till the fields, to perpetuate the race, while no one could find any sort of use for a dead man. This practical view of the question, re-enforced by human sympathy, ended by becoming an instinct and was incorporated into written law. The great philosopher of evolution attributes a similar origin to the prejudice against theft. In the beginning of society stealing was a great inconvenience. In the dawn of civilization there were few things to steal. If a robber took surreptitiously the weapon of a warrior, he substracted so much from the common means of defence. If he stole a laborer's sole agricultural implement or his solitary goat or cow, he took away his means of production or the support of his family. In this way the social condition was rendered uncertain. Commercial relations became impossible. Hence the idea or principle of the right of property. So much for the origin of moral sense, according to Spencer, a question over which probably no two men can agree, nor never will unless by some strange accident the "missing" link of evolution shall be revealed.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Special Meeting—Rock Bay Bridge Contract.

A special meeting of the Board was held last evening in the Mayor's office. Present: His Worship Mayor Grant, Ald. Wilson, Vigelius, McKillican, Styles, Goodacre, Coughlan, Harrison and Kelly.

A motion was made to open the tenders for Rock Bay Bridge.

Ald. McKillican considered that the funds at the disposal of the Board would be insufficient to carry on this work. It would be necessary to introduce a by-law to raise more money and if the ratepayers sanctioned the expenditure the work would then be proceeded with. If the by-law was defeated the old structure could be repaired. He then moved an amendment, that the tenders be sealed and placed in the safe until the opinion of the property owners is taken on the matter. Seconded by Ald. Wilson.

Ald. Harrison said it would be unjust to the contractors to seal the tenders. He favored awarding the contract with the proviso that the work will not be proceeded with until a by-law passes authorizing the raising of the amount required.

Ald. Coughlan considered that the work should be proceeded with at once. The building of Rock Bay bridge was an absolutely necessary work and the city was in a position to proceed with it at once. The timbers in the bridge are in a bad condition and it was unsafe.

Ald. McKillican said the timber of the present bridge was good and it would only be necessary to spend two or three hundred dollars to make the present structure safe.

Ald. Coughlan—The expenditure of $500 would not make the bridge safe.

Ald. Wilson said the opening of tenders would be useless unless the money was raised to go on with the work. The cutting down of the approaches to the new bridge would cost a large sum.

Ald. Vigelius agreed with Ald. Wilson. He considered that work on the streets would be stopped if the contract was awarded at once.

Ald. Harrison said he intended to introduce a by-law to raise the necessary funds for street work.

Ald. Kelly wished to see a good bridge across Rock Bay and considered that a sum of money should be voted by the ratepayers.

Ald. Styles was in favor of proceeding with the work at once. He considered that the bridge would cost less than $12,000.

His Worship said the tenders could be opened and the work might be delayed. The Board should have considered their financial standing before calling for tenders.

A motion to proceed with the work at once was lost, Ald. Goodacre, Styles and Coughlan voting in the affirmative.

Ald. Harrison moved, seconded by Ald. McKillican, that tenders be opened and the contract awarded, the works to be proceeded with when a by-law is assented to by the ratepayers.

The motion was carried by a vote of 5 to 3. Ald. Coughlan, Goodacre and Styles voting against it.

The tenders were opened. Mr. D. F. Adams' tender was the lowest. He offered to construct the bridge for the sum of $7625; Messrs. Williams & West's tender was next, $8075.

Mr. Adams was given permission to speak and stated that he wished to withdraw his tender. He considered that the Board were no nearer a decision than they were at first. When his tender was handed in he intended to construct one of the best bridges in the neighborhood of Victoria. He was losing time and was thoroughly tired of the manner in which the Council did business.

Ald. Harrison said Mr. Adams should be allowed to withdraw his tender; he was presuming too much in dictating to the Board.

The deposits of parties tendering were ordered to be returned, excepting in the case of the two lowest tenderers, whose plans were submitted to the city engineer and Mr. Perry, C.E., for examination and report on Wednesday next.

A portion of the Street Committee's report of January 14th was rescinded, and a crossing ordered to be laid a few feet further down on Yates street than where it was at first proposed.

The question of appointing a permanent assessor was under discussion when it was discovered that several of their number were leaving and the meeting was brought to a close.

A Common Cold

Is often the beginning of serious affections of the Throat, Bronchial Tubes, and Lungs. Therefore, the importance of early and effective treatment cannot be overestimated. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral may always be relied upon for the speedy cure of a Cold or Cough.

Last January I was attacked with a severe Cold, which, by neglect and frequent exposures, became worse, finally settling on my lungs. A terrible cough soon followed, accompanied by pains in the chest, from which I suffered intensely. After trying various remedies, without obtaining relief, I commenced taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was

Two years ago I suffered from a severe Cold, which settled on my Lungs. I consulted various physicians, and took the medicines they prescribed, but received only temporary relief. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. After taking two bottles of this medicine I was cured. Since then I have given the Pectoral to my children, and consider it

Some time ago I took a slight Cold, which, being neglected, grew worse, and settled on my Lungs. I had a hacking cough, and was very weak. Those who knew me best considered my life to be in great danger. I continued to suffer until I commenced using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Less than one bottle of this valuable medicine cured me, and I feel that I owe the preservation of my life to its curative powers.—Mrs. Ann Lockwood, Akron, New York.

case, it is astonishing that public attention is not more attracted to it. As I have stated, 10,000 die yearly in the Dominion of Canada, and over 200,0000 lives are lost on this continent yearly from consumption. No doubt the large percentage of deaths are produced or due largely to ignorance of the cause of this disease, and the non-fulfillment of sanitary laws. There are other diseases which are communicable from animals to man. Epidemics of sore throat have been caused through the milk supply. Diptheria is communicated to cats from children. Fowls have been known to have become diseased in the same way, or the converse takes place. This disease is carried from these animals to children. In a recent report by Dr. Bruce Low, of the Medical Department in England, he states that during

AN EPIDEMIC OF DIPHTHERIA.

Cats were observed to die in large numbers. In this instance it was traced to a cat having taken the disease from a child, and afterwards communicated it to other cats in the neighborhood. Diphtheria has also been known to have been obtained from fowls. A physician at Naples reports an epidemic of diphtheria, which was caused by fowls. Many instances could be cited of the truth of this. There is another disease, which in this particular is worthy of a short notice, namely; scarlet fever. Scarlet fever, or scarlatina, is a disease similar to the Hendon Cow disease, and observations have been made with calves fed on milk taken from cows subject to the disease. They were almost immediately siezed with a febrile disease which almost proved fatal to them, followed by other signs peculiar to this disease in the human being. Dr. Buchanan, in his annual report to the English Government Board, states that by his investigations either from the cow or human being, that the subcultures of scarlet fever is identical with that of the Hendon disease. That calves fed on subcultures from human scarlatina obtained the Hendon disease. And children fed on milk from cows suffering from the Hendon disease

OBTAINED SCARLATINA.

He concludes by saying: "The mass of evidence shows that the Hendon disease is a form occurring in the cow of the very disease that we call scarlatina, when it occurs in the human subject." Dr. Russell, Health Officer for Glasgow, Scotland, reports an outbreak of scarlet fever traced to the supply of milk as being the source of contagion. We might cite numerous authorities who have made these investigations cautiously and scientifically, but our time is limited and we must pass on. The question naturally arises in the face of these facts, What are the remedies for the prevention of these diseases? which is a subject of great interest to the laity as well as the medical profession. My object in taking up this subject more particularly, was to point out the necessity of everyone taking heed to sanitary laws, which go a long way to prevent the spread of disease and to prolong life. Each can do his part in endeavoring to improve his own locality and surroundings, by studying the laws of sanitation. At the last meeting of the Dominion Medical Association, which was held in Ottawa last August, after listening to an address delivered by Dr. Pister, of that city, on the subject of tuberculosis in animals, I took the opportunity of moving the following resolution, seconded by Dr. Sweetland, of Ottawa, which was carried unanimously:

"That in view of the apparently increasing prevalence of tubercular disease in animals, and more especially in cows, in the opinion of this association it is desirable that should be taken by the Dominion Government to check the progress of this disease; and we urge that the government take this matter under their consideration at as an early date as possible."

What action the government have taken on this subject is not yet known, but no doubt at the present sitting of the Federal Parliament, a sum will be placed in the estimates for the purpose of making investigation as to its prevalence in this country, and steps taken to institute such laws and means as to limit its spread among cattle in the future. We have public laws governing some diseases and with the evidence now before us in reference to tuberculosis, is sufficient to demand immediate legislation. And when that is obtained we shall expect that our cattle will become a purer and healthier class, and that the milk and meat we may use will be free from this disease. It will also lead to

BETTER CARE OF STOCK,

for we cannot but believe that the spred of such diseases is due largely to the unsanitary condition of stables and places where stock is kept. The same may be said of human beings. If persons prone to this disease were to study the laws of health, it would no doubt become less prevalent. Tuberculosis in animals is not like the cattle plague, pluero pneumonia, and other such diseases; they run a rapid course, but animals diseased with tubercle run a chronic course and may live for years after contracting the disease, hence the greater amount of danger likely to flow from it. I see a great obstacle in the way of active legislation, as owners of stock will be loath to have such stock destroyed; but if the disease is as prevalent as has been maintained by some, interference will soon become a necessity. It is possible that some of the young men here to-night may become, ere long, our representatives in parliament, and it may come before them for consideration. It is at once obvious that in order that the ravages of disease should be stopped, legislation should be enacted to keep these diseases within bounds, and that the death rate could no doubt be materially reduced. Laws governing not only the destroying of such diseased animals but the providing of proper ventilation of stables, pure water, food, sunlight and other essentials of health. Just the same with ourselves; we must pay attention to these laws. No facts are better established than that a very large proportion of diseases which affect the human being is promoted by the

LACK OF CLEANLINESS,

ventilation and other means necessary for our well being. It is without doubt the diseases to which I have referred to are preventable to great extent, and at this age when we have so many societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals. We shall soon expect to find societies formed for the purpose of prevention the spread of disease. We are all aware a great deal has been done, and attention drawn by farmers and organized bodies, assisted by government aid, for the purpose of destroying parasites which infect the cereal of the farm, with the object of destroying them. How much more important is the question we have been considering, namely, diseases communicated from animals to man. Many human beings are no doubt stricken down with diseases from these causes which are to a great extent preventable and within our control. We then, looking into the near future expect to have such legislation enacted which will govern the supply of meat and milk, and that animals known to be affected with tuberculosis will be taken in charge by the public authorities and disposed of as they may see fit. Referring again to the question of heredity, I firmly believe the day is not far distant when legislation will be enacted prohibiting marriage with those who are subjects of

SEVERE NERVOUS DISEASES,

such as insanity, epilepsy, when it prevails in families to any extent. Certainly it would be in the interest of future generations. This may be considered extreme legislation, but when taken into consideration the evils resulting from such marriage relations, naturally, the misery and suffering which is likely to flow from it one cannot but think such actions would be in the interest of humanity. In the perfect drainage of a house, implies the immediate and complete removal of all waste matter from our dwellings beyond where contamination is not likely to occur. So let it be with diseases to which we have been considering; let due precaution in isolation, and other measures necessary to limit their spread. You may consider this question entirely within the sphere of the sanitarian, or physician, but not so, it depends in a great degree on the masses of the people and their representatives, to bring about such legislation and assist in carrying them out. On you, young men depend much the actions of the future, and I would ask you to give careful consideration to the suggestions I have offered. The natural term of life is 100 years as fixed by physiologists, but the average duration is much less than half of this period. The question naturally is asked, what are the causes of such an early mortality. It should be our earnest endeavor and reduce the youth and infant mortality by attention to proper sanitary laws, while at the same time securing a greater comfort and better health for individuals and the public at large. In conclusion, gentlemen, you will observe the whole subject takes a humane aspect when considered in the light of sanitarians, and that is with the object of prolonging life, and keeping off that day which will come to us all sooner or later—the day of death. Some die in old age, some in youth, others in infancy. Death is likened to the King of Terrors, and by many the approach of it is feared; but few cases are recorded in which it is so feared. In some recent letters published in the Forum by English physicians, quite the converse is their experience. Dr. Richardson says: "When physicians have taught the world how this benign process of nature may be secured and the world has accepted the lesson, death itself will be practically banished; it will be divested of fear, of sorrow, of suffering. It will come as a sleep." Shelly's description is true and can be endorsed by the majority of physicians, when he says:

TO PROLONG LIFE

"Mild is the slow necessity of death:
The tranquil spirit fails beneath its grasp;
Without a groan, almost without a fear,
Resigned in peace to the necessity;
Calm as a voyager to some distant land,
And full of wonder, full of hope as he."

THE COMING CELEBRATION.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir,—It is to be hoped that since so early and promising a beginning has been made for the 24th celebration, and nothing will be left undone to make it the extensive affair it promises to be. People seem disposed this year to have something worthy of the queen city. But to begin with, there must be money to do it. Seattle raised something like $9000 or $10,000 for her 4th of July last year, and it was only done by every man, woman and child subscribing what they could to the fund. With this sum they were enabled to advertise extensively and to draw thousands of people, and when they got them there to entertain them for three days consecutively. In this way the city received some return for the money expended, besides giving satisfactory entertainment. People could not go away saying they had seen nothing. Now, what I would like to see on this occasion would be a three day instead of a two day celebration in order that the programme may be carried out without that hurry which would spoil it. If this were done there would be time for a good baseball tournament in which probably three clubs from the Sound cities and two from Portland would take part and which would attract a greater number of American visitors than anything else. With proper advertising there will be no difficulty about getting a crowd. I see that excursion rates will be offered from as far east as Kamloops. This is not far enough. The C. P. R. would no doubt give excursion rates from Calgary and Winnipeg if they were asked to do so, and plenty would avail themselves of the chance to visit the coast. Above all things let us not do this business meanly or by halves but rather let us add two storeys to our reputation. BIG SCALE.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Histogenetic System,

—THE—

Entire Revolution of Medicine!

TESTIMONIALS.

Victoria, B. C., January 28th 1889.

DR. J. EUGENE JORDAN:

Dear Sir—I have much pleasure in testifying to the virtues of your medicines. I was paralysed from the hips down: could not stand on my limbs without support, was induced to try your medicines; in six weeks could walk and was perfectly strong again, after using the medicine two months; it is four months since I stopped the medicine and no sign of the trouble returning. A. B. OLDERSHAW.

Victoria, B. C., 25th January 1889.

DR. J. EUGENE JORDAN:

Dear Sir—I have very great pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficiency of your medicines I was taken down with Rheumatic fever early in the spring which never seemed to entirely leave me, along in the summer my joints became so stiff and I was so crippled with Rheumatism that I could not walk without the help of a cane I suffered very much pain whenever I attempted to move. I tried your medicine which cured me in a few weeks; I am now able to work and do not hesitate to recommend your medicine to the public, in my opinion there is nothing like them to cure Rheumatism. WM. TRUESDAL.

Victoria, B. C., 18th February 1889.

DR. J. EUGENE JORDAN M. D.

Dear Sir—I have much pleasure in adding my testimony to the efficiency of your medicines, I was suffering severely from an attack of Quinsy, a friend of mine recommended your medicines, which I began taking, and in a few hours the pain was gone. I can recommend Histogenetic medicines as a specific in that complaint. JAMES KNOX, SS. Islander.

Victoria, September 27th, 1889.

DR. J. EUGENE JORDAN.

Dear Sir—As I am about to leave the country I think it is my duty to you and the public that I should thank your agent, Mr. DesBrisay, for introducing your medicine to me. I have been very bad for five years with rheumatism and paralysis. Tried everything but got no relief until I tried your medicine, in it I found great relief, so much so that I will take a supply with me, and when out I will send for more. Sir, I remain yours, T. H. —It will repay you to visit Waitt's Music Store and see the Knabe Pianos, and the other well known instruments which they have in stock.

—A magnificent line of Gendron's celebrated wire wheel baby buggies just opened at John Weiler's. Also China dinner, breakfast and tea services.

—L. Battress-Trimens' boat house is still in the place it occupied before yesterday's gale, and was not broken up as reported in this morning's Colonist.

—H. M. S. Icarus, which has been in dry dock for several weeks, came out today, the repairing and cleaning of her hull having been thoroughly completed.

A lady writes: "I was enabled to remove the corns, root and branch, by the use of Holloway's Corn Cure." Others who have tried it have the same experience.

—Worms derange the whole system. Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator deranges worms, and gives rest to the sufferer. It only costs twenty-five cents to try it and be convinced.

—It will be noticed by advertisement that the Medical Council of British Columbia meets on the 7th day of May next for the examination of Candidates and transaction of business connected with the Council.

—The Chinese residents are engaged in worshiping for their dead ancestors. Since last Sunday they have been visiting the cemetery in droves with roast pigs and other offerings.

—The roof of Mr. Anderson's barn, on the the Saanich road, was blown off by the wind on Monday afternoon. It was a very strange thing that his son's house also collapsed yesterday morning.

—Another body, a Chinaman was consigned to the grave this morning. But it was a lonely funeral, two small boys following the hearse only. All the dead man's effects were burnt but a deadly looking revolver, which was taken by a friend.

The Seamen's Protective Association of San Francisco remembers its members regardless of expense. When the news of Jerry Kelsher's death was received a telegraph order for $190 was sent to this city for the expenses connected with sending the remains to San Francisco.

Messrs Parker and Laird, of Hilledale, write:—"Our Mr. Laird having occasion to visit Scotland, and knowing the excellent qualities of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, concluded to take some with him, and the result has been very astonishing. We may say that in several instances it has effected cures when ailments have been pronounced incurable by eminent practitioners."

—We always thought our morning contemporary was becoming more narrow-minded every day, and this morning it furnished undoubted evidence that our fears were well grounded. It has contracted its columns to such an extent that, like a thin man's ribs, the column rules almost touch. Our contemporary will now write in a more contracted channel than before.

—When the Vital Current is vitiated from any cause, scorbutic blemishes in the shape of pimples, sores and blotches soon began to disfigure the skin. In such a case the most effective purifier is Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which expels impurities from the blood as well as regulates digestion, the bowels, liver and kidneys. For Female Complaints it has no equal.

Murder on the Corona.

Drouillard, the alleged murderer of the coal passer on the Corona has been in the steamship service on this coast for thirteen years and was for some time assistant engineer on board the Shubrick. He has a wife living in San Francisco. He has retained Messrs. Stott, Smith, Stott & Boise to defend him. He will claim that he acted in self defense and that Riberos, who was a much larger man, attacked him. Ribsros was a Chilian about 23 years of age and a stranger to all on board the Corona.

Thief Captured.

A man named George Marshall, recently from San Francisco, was arrested this morning on a charge of stealing three pairs of blankets from the C. P. N. Co.'s wharf. The thief was in the act of pawning one pair of blankets when the pawnbroker called the police. The man was captured at 9:15 o'clock this morning, was tried at 11 o'clock and was sent to the Provincial gaol for six months inside of another hour. Severe and speedy punishment of this description will have a telling effect on the worthless class prowling around the city.

Ben and Idalene Cotton.

Of these talented artists who appear at the Victoria theatre to-morrow evening in the drama "Nobody's Claim." The Cartoon and San Francisco Press says: "Ben Cotton is the best of all Negro imitators."—New York Sun. "The most happy-go-lucky and jolliest minstrel on the stage."—Chicago Inter-Ocean. "Ben Cotton's Negro character impersonations are better than the real thing."—St. Louis Dispatch. "Miss Idalene Cotton is most certainly a gifted young lady and deserves the numerous encores she received last night."—Examiner.

Heavy Real Estate Transfer.

Messrs. Bourchier & Higgins yesterday completed the transfer of four lots in Mr. D. W. Higgins' property on Regent Park. One of the purchasers, who is a well-known lawyer, will at once proceed to erect a handsome residence. The amount paid for the lots is not stated, but it runs well into the thousands. The enterprising brokers expect to sell en bloc in a few days a large estate in close proximity to the city. It is rumored the property has been already bonded by eastern people, who are represented by a live man in this city.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Hon. A. N. Richards, Q. C.)

Phillip Chalk, a burly red-whiskered individual, pleaded not guilty on a charge of drunkenness.

Sergt. Walker said the defendant was carrying on the corner of Yates and Government street yesterday morning; he was flourishing an umbrella and said he was crazy.

His Honor—You are fined $5. Have you any property?

Prisoner—No, you Honor; I have only an umbrella and my hat.

His Honor—You are sentenced to imprisonment for one month.

D. McCabbney, charged by officer Haughton with being in a state of intoxication on the streets. Fined $5.

Edward Marshall was charged by Officer Houghton with stealing a pair of blankets the property of C. Fraser. The officer said he was informed of the robbery and found the prisoner in the act of pawning a pair of blankets at A. A. Aaronson's store. Arrested the prisoner, who said he received the blankets from another man.

Charles Fraser said he recognized the strap on the blankets and thought the blankets belonged to him. Left three pairs of blankets on the wharf last night. The blankets were not there this morning.

Sam Levy deposed that prisoner came into A. A. Aaronson's store this morning. Prisoner came in with the blankets produced fifteen minutes after notice was given witness by the police.

Prisoner was sentenced to imprisonment for six months.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

To the Editor of the Times:

Sir:—I see one of the M. P. Ps. alluded to in the Victoria council in a manner not complimentary to that body, I think the gentleman cannot have attended any of the meetings of that body during the present year. I have attended nearly every meeting this year, and must say that its meetings are a decided improvement on last year, or, indeed, I may say for several years previously. All that has been done this year so far, has been done in a harmonious manner; at times a little humorous joke at some member trying to get all the money available for work, spent in his own ward, may take place, but so far, that is all. Though not at the meeting last night, I am told that one of those little breezes occurred, when Ald Coughlan tried to get $10,000 out of a remaining $12,000, spent in his ward for Rock Bay bridge. Of course all the aldermen not belonging to Johnson Street Ward, objected, until a loan by-law for streets, bridges and other improvements came before the people. The sooner this is done the better, as a great many improvements are badly needed in almost every part of the city, with the exception of Amelia street. Yours,

Progress.

Victoria, April 2nd.

Libel Bill Defeated.

Mr. Higgins Libel Bill was defeated in the House this afternoon by a vote of 14 to 9. Dunsmuir's influence is paramount and he has sworn to crush every paper refusing to obey him. The law is just as he wants it.

The Ladies Delighted.

The pleasant effect and the perfect safety with which ladies may use the liquid fruit laxative, Syrup of Figs, under all conditions make it their favorite remedy. It is pleasing to the eye and to the taste, gentle, yet effectual in acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels.

PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE.

The Proceedings in the House Yesterday and To-day.

Monday, April 1.

Consideration of the Municipal bill in committee continued. An amendment was inserted making the maximum for shop licenses $75 for every six months.

License for restaurants in rural districts was placed at $30 for every six months.

An amusing discussion on the question as to whether a place where "an onion cracker" were supplied constituted a restaurant and to what extent the sale of spirituous liquors should be allowed in such a place. The third member for New Westminster district suggested that nothing stronger than buttermilk should be allowed.

The bill contained a clause placing a tax of $5 for every six months on opium smokers.

Hon. Mr. Humphreys moved a clause compelling those drinking spirituous liquors at any licensed house to pay a license fee of $5 every six months.

Several honorable members agreed that this was following things to their logical conclusion, but that amendment was withdrawn.

The license for Chinese washhouses was reduced from $75 to $5. The former had never been collected.

Mr. Orr moved that the barrister's tax be increased from $12 50 to $25.

Mr. Grant—It makes no difference what you raise it to, you can't collect it.

Hon. Mr. Robson—Strike it out altogether then. But I think you can collect it.

Mr. Davie—The professions are not enumerated in the British North America Act among the ceilings which are taxable.

Mr. Orr—I always understood that it was because they were non-producers.

Mr. Davie—You are a non-producer, but you are taxable.

Mr. Orr—I was going to say, when interrupted, that the lawyers were "non-producers"—of anything excepting discord.

The license for circuses was placed at $50.

Discussion arose as to what constituted a show or theatre.

Mr. Allen suggested that the Club theatre should be taken as a standard.

Hon. Mr. Robson—What is a show?

Hon. Mr. Beaven—This is a show we have here this afternoon.

On the clause relating to the licensing board coming up Mr. Davie opposed the acting of Justices of the Peace on the Board and wished to substitute for them "two persons appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council." The clause then read that the licensing board should consist of the mayor or reeve, the police magistrate, two municipal councillors and two persons appointed by the government. He claimed that justices of the peace were irresponsible persons who often granted licenses as caprice dictated. As licenses were granted at present injustice was frequently done. He also proposed to regulate wholesale houses in the same manner as retail houses.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—If the honorable gentleman had not assured me that he wished to assist the bill through I would have taken this as notice of a desire to kill it. These provisions will not dovetail in the bill. I have tried for hours to make some such provisions workable but could not do it.

Hon. Mr. Robson was very favorable to Mr. Davie's amendment.

Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir—I would like to see some change from justices of the peace.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—Well, these justices of the peace are in the minority in any event, and it is only proposed to allow them to take a seat in the board according to seniority.

Mr. T. Davie—According to the time time they were appointed?

Hon. Mr. Beaven—Yes, according to the date of their appointment. Besides, as I was going to reply to the president of the council, it surely cannot be desired that the government should interfere in such matters as these.

After a good deal of adverse discussion Mr. Davie withdrew his amendments.

In respect to the choosing of the justices of the peace, viz: As to who should sit on the board, Mr. Dunsmuir suggested that they should be ballotted for. It was not good to know which of them would sit on the board.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—How will you ballot?

Mr. Allen—Shake the "dips."

Hon. Mr. Beaven—You can shake the dice in Lillooet.

The proposition was dropped.

A clause provided that the council should elect two members of their number who should sit on the licensing board and that the two so elected should continue to sit at the board provided they were re-elected to the council by the people at the next municipal election, but no longer.

Local option was granted to the extent of allowing the residents of the block in which the house asking for a license was situated and the residents of the block opposite to it have the license refused by petition. Committee reported progress and asked leave to sit again.

It being six o'clock the speaker left the chair.

EVENING SESSION.

Mr. Speaker took the chair at 7:30 p. m.

Mr. Ladner made an amendment to a clause relating to the the aldermen who should sit on the licensing board. The amendment provided that no interested aldermen should sit on the board; that is, none interested in liquor houses. Carried.

Hon. Mr. Beaven inserted an amendment defining "intoxicating liquors."

When the clause exempting firemen who had served five years on the Victoria volunteer fire department previous to its disbandment came up, Messrs. Robson, Vernon and Orr demanded that it should be struck out.

Hon. Mr. Beaven said it had been inserted in an act two or three years ago as a tribute to a few men who had performed a self-sacrificing and noble duty for a number of years. It could do no harm. The clause was struck out.

Mr. Duck moved the following amendments:

Real property shall be estimated at its actual cash value as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor; but this section shall not apply to property held by any railway company.

(2) In assessing vacant ground or grounds used as a farm, garden, or nursery, and not in immediate demand for building purposes, the value of such vacant or other ground shall be that at which sales of it can be freely made; and where no sales can be reasonably expected during the current year, the collectors shall value such land as though it was held for farming or gardening purposes, with such percentage added thereto as the situation of the land may reasonably call for; and such vacant lands, though surveyed into building lots, if unsold as such, may be entered on the assessment roll as so many acres of the original lot or section, describing the same by the number of the lot or section by which the land is designated on the official map of the city, town, or district in which it is situated: Provided, that in such case the number and description of each building lot, or subdivision of each lot or section, shall be inserted on the assessment roll, and shall be liable for a proportionate share as to value, and the amount of the taxes if the property is sold for arrears of taxes.

(3) When ground is not held for the purpose, of sale, but bona fide inclosed and used in connection with a residence or building as a paddock, park, lawn, garden, or pleasure-ground, it shall be assessed therewith at a valuation which, at six per centum, would yield a sum equal to the annual rental which, in the judgment of the collectors, it is fairly and reasonably worth for the purposes for which it is used, reference being always made to its position and local advantages.

Mr. Orr—That places an immense power in the hands of the assessor and is as incomprehensible as the honorable gentleman's budget speech some three years ago.

The amendment was inserted by a vote of 11 to 6.

The remaining clauses of the bill having been passed over the committee rose and reported progress.

As the Speaker took the chair some of the members applauded.

Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir (to Mr. Beaven)—That will be a monument for you.

ADVANCED A STAGE.

The Kootenay Railway Subsidy bill was read a third time and passed.

The Mineral Act Amendment bill was read a third time and passed.

The Canadian Railway Company bill was read a third time and passed.

The Companies Act Amendment bill was read a third time and passed.

A Government bill granting lands for certain obarities was read a first time.

THE LIBEL BILL.

The adjourned debate on Mr. Higgins' libel bill being called—

Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir—If the honorable gentleman will not withdraw the bill I am going to speak two hours on it.

Mr. Higgins—Very well.

Members—Hold it over until to-morrow.

Hon. Mr. Dunsmuir—Is the honorable gentleman going to withdraw the bill?

Mr. Higgins—If that kind of thing is going to go on I shall simply go home.

Mr. Semlin—The President of the Council can go on with his two hours speech and the member for Esquimalt can go home as I do not think the bill will reach the second reading to-night.

The second reading was postponed.

PRIVILEGE.

Mr. Davis in reference to the Public Accounts Committee wished to know from the leader of the opposition if he (Mr. B.) wished him (Mr. D.) to call the committee together. The leader of the Opposition informed him in other years when he wished the committee called together but this year he had made no such intimation.

Hon. Mr. Beaven reminded the House that on two occasions he had risen in his place in the House and called attention to the fact that the committee had not been called together. The member for Cassiar did the same thing on another occasion. Then at another time he (Mr. B) gave notice of a motion to have Mr. Davie's name struck off the committee as chairman, and the name of the member for Esquimalt substituted "I thought perhaps," said Mr. Beaven, "that the honorable gentleman was too busy with his private practice to attend meetings of the committee, and I therefore asked to relieve him of that duty." What was the consequence? The honorable gent'eman not only stated that he did not wish his name taken off the committee, but a majority of the House voted to keep him in. Now, Mr. Speaker, I ask you, and I ask the country—there is no use asking the House—if I have not done my duty.

Mr. Davie—The honorable gentleman does not deny that in previous years he has intimated when he wished the committee called together.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—I am only one of five. What have the others been doing? What have you been doing.

Mr. Davie—Still I say the honorable gentleman does not deny that in other years he stated when he wished the committee to be called together and that this session he did not.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—I do deny it. On three different occasions this session I called the attention of the House and the honorable gentleman that the committee had not been called together.

Mr. Davie—Well, I have only to say that whenever the honorable gentleman asks me to call the committee together I will do so, and not before.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—As I have said, I have already asked you three times through the House.

Hon. Mr. Vernon—Well, meet now.

Mr. Speaker—You cannot meet while the House is sitting.

Hon. Mr. Vernon—Meet to-morrow morning.

Hon. Mr. Beaven—I am sorry to say I have an engagement at 10 o'clock.

Hon. Mr. Robson—Well, the accounts are all right anyway.

Mr. Orr—Mr. Speaker, I would call your attention to this. There are rules and regulations distinctly and explicitly laid down for the guidance of this House and of its committees. I think, sir, it is time that they were adhered to.

POISONS BILL.

This bill being thrown out at the second reading, the House adjourned till 2 p. m. on Tuesday.

Tuesday, April 2.

Mr. Speaker took the chair at 2 p. m.

REPORTS.

The committee appointed to enquire into the conduct of the Victoria Jail reported.

ASSESSMENT BILL.

The Attorney-General moved the second reading of a bill to amend the Assessment Act. The bill provided as follows: Notwithstanding anything contained in the "Assessment Act," an appeal from the Court of Revision and Appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court sitting as a Full Court, not only against a decision of the Court of Revision on an appeal to the said Court of Revision, but also against the omission, neglect or refusal of the Court of Revision to hear or decide an appeal. The notice of such appeal to the Full Court, the time for bringing the same on, and the procedure generally, and the powers of the Full Court in respect of such appeal, shall be the same as in the case of of an ordinary appeal from any judgment made by a Judge of the Supreme Court to the Full Court. Bill passed through committee and was read a third time.

CHARITY.

The provincial secretary moved the second reading of a bill for the purpose of granting lands to certain charities. He explained that clause one provided for the granting of land in New Westminster to the Reformed Episcopal church. Clause two provided for the granting of Lot 2, Block II, part of the former townsite of Granville, to the corporation of the city of Vancouver. Clause three provided for the granting to Victoria all and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate, lying, and being in the city of Victoria, and more particularly known and described as Block 50 (fifty), as shown on the official map of said city of Victoria; also, all and singular those certain parcels or tracts of land and premises situate, lying, and being in the city of Victoria, and more particularly known and described as Lots Nos. 1956, 1957, 1958, 1959, 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, 1964, 1965, 1966, 1967, Block 66 (sixty-six) as, shown on the official map of said city of Victoria; also All and singular those certain pieces or tracts of land and premises situate, lying, and being on the north side of Belleville street, in the City of Victoria, and more particularly known and described as Lots Nos. 549A, 550A, 551A, 563A, 564A, 567A, 568A, 569A, and 570C, as shown on the official map or plan of the subdivision of Beckley Farm, dated 7th January, A. D. 1863, deposited in the Lands and Works Department; also, all and singular, that certain piece or tract of land situate in Lake or Victoria Districts and known as Mount Douglas Crown Reserve.

Hon. Mr. Beaven asked the Government to have the authority inserted in this bill to grant a title to Capt. Peter Holmes, for the land held by him. Seafaring men were proverbially careless about these matters, and this Captain Holmes had allowed the matter to drift along, being assured by one government after another that he would not be disturbed. He was satisfied with that assurance as many would have done instead of permitting to getting his title as many others would have done. Captain Holmes had paid his taxes for the past 20 years and he had held the land and no consideration should prevent him from acquiring it.

The government promised to protect the rights of Capt. Holmes, and the bill was read a third time and passed.
